U.S. Drops Wheat Aid On Exports Cost of Bushel

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23 (AP). The Agriculture Department to-day wiped out wheat export subsidies in a move that raised the price of U.S. grain about 18 cents a bushel for foreign customers. The action made U.S. wheat 50 percent more expensive on the world market than it was a

The announcement was made routinely in a daily report showing the subsidy rates. It said the subsidy for all kinds of wheat would be zero at least through Subsides are payments made to exporters to bridge the difference between the U.S. domestic price and a lower world price. The objective was to make U.S. wheat competitive on world markets. Hard red winter wheat-the most widely grown and the most in foreign demand—is regarded as the basic guide. Yesterday the department said the subsidy rate for that wheat shipped from Gulf Coast ports would be 14 cents a bushel The announcement today that the subsidy had ended was tho latest move by the Agriculture Department to reduce export

Before the rates were cut back, the subsidies rose to a peak of 47 cents a bushel sold before the ingust policy change. Most of the 40 million bushels of wheat sold to the Soviet Union this summer were contracted for by export companies at subsidy rates based on the old $1.63 target

Much of the Soviet sale was bought in early July when the harvest-time price of wheat was seasonally low. However, as the magnitude of the Soviet purchases became known or suspectde in late July and August, the farm price of wheat rose sharply -the biggest increase in 25 years -and the subsidies were raised to keep pace.

Calif. Regents ning with your revolution for in-Bar Rehiring Of Miss Davis

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 22 (UPI).—Angela Davis will not get back her job as a philosophy instructor at the University of California at Los Angeles, the University of California regents said today.

The regents met briefly to discuss a recommendation from the UCLA philosophy department that Miss Davis, the avowed Communist and black militant, be reappointed to the department, in which she was once an acting associate professor.

UCLA Chancellor Charles E. Young said the board elected not to reopen the case.

"If I would have had the authority to act. I would have deni-ed the appointment," Mr. Young added. He said the recommendation to reappoint was "clouded" by other matters, including Miss Davis's "moral obligation" to work in the revolutionary movement. Mr. Young said that activity would detract from her academic commitment.

"Her statements indicate she is committed to other things," Mr. Young said.

KEY VOTE-Kai-Uwe von Hassel, president of West German Bundestag, announcing result of no-confidence motion.

Paving Way for Elections

Brandt, as He Planned, Loses Bundestag Confidence Vote

By David Binder

BONN, Sept. 22 (NYT).-Chan- Hans Dietrich Genscher and cellor Willy Brandt tonight lost his parliamentary confidence vote. as he planned. The count was 248 to 233.

The vote, ending his administration a year carly, after he had less than three years in office, was called by him as a means of obtaining federal elections to break the deadlock in the Bundestag.

The lower house of 496 deputies has been split evenly since April 28 between 248 members of the chancellor's Social Democratic-Free Democratic coalition and the 248 deputies of the opposition Christian Union.

Mr. Brandt and his 13-member cabinet deliberately abstained from the vote to insure that his motion would fail. It is a peculiarity of West Germany's 1948 constitution that the only way for a chancellor to obtain elections within the four-year legislative term is to lose a confidence vote.

Six Deputies Left

Mr. Brandt, elected chancellor Oct. 21, 1969, by a three-vote majority of 251, lost his parliamentary edge last spring through the desertion of six deputies. Most of the defectors left him and his Free Democratic coalition partner, Foreign Minister Walter Scheel, to protest the government's policy of seeking normal relations and treaties with the Soviet Union and its European Communist allies.

The developing deadlock tempted the opposition leader, Ramer Barzel, to try oppling Mr. Brandt with a no-confidence vote last April 27. He failed by two votes. The opposition in the stalemated parliament nevertheless acted as an accomplice of the coalition by allowing the key treatles of the government's Eastern policy—with Moscow and Warsaw—to obtain parliamentary ratification last spring. These actions tended to weaken Mr. Barzel's allegation, which he repeated today, that the policy of the government had "collepsed."

Warning by Hassel

Kai-Uwe von Hassel, the president of the Bundestog, ended the life of the sixth West German legislature shortly before 7 p.m. with a short word of thanks and a warning that: "We should be opponents but we should not become enemies. Actually, the formal act of dissolution was the task of Federal President Gustav Heinemann. Mr. Brandt went immediately after the Bundestag session to call on the Social Democratic president to recommend the dissolution and new elections.

Mr. Heinemann had his decrea ready and sent it to Mr. Hassel a balf hour later. The date of the elections. Nov. 19. was formally requested by Interior Minister accepted by Mr. Heinemann. The circumstances of the dissolotion, unique in postwar Germany because it resulted from the first confidence vote, left tho Bundestag deputies deprived of many of their privileges as they face the election campaign. They no longer enjoy parliamentary immunity and they are denied the use of such extras as Bundestag letterheads. Mr. Brandt and his cabinet retwo other measures approved by both government and opposition. One was an agreement with the Soviet Union to establish a regular air service between Frankfurt and Moscow, with stops in tetween. The regular weekly flights will be started by the West German airline, Lufthansa, and Russia's Aeroflot in February. ## Ugandan Asians Get 48-Hour Exit Limit

KAMPALA, Uganda, Sept. 22 (Reuters),—Uganda today told more than 8,600 Asians with British passports to get out of the country within 48 hours.

A statement broadcast by Radio Uganda said that the security forces had been told to make sure that the Asians left Uganda within the new deadline.

The statement said that "British Asians who have been cleared by the Bank of Uganda will not be permitted to remain in the country for more than 48 hours." According to the statement, more than 8,600 British Asians had been cleared by last Tuesday to leave Ugando, but only a few hundred had in fact done so since special charter flights to London began on Sunday.

The 48-hour deadline was announced at the end of a long statement in which the Ugandan government complained that British Asians appeared rejuctant to leave promptly after required clearance by the Bank of Uganda and the income

Gen. Fidel Ramos, chief of the Philippine Constabulary, confirmed in a telephone interview that a proclamation of martial law was being implemented.
He said orders had been issued to military commanders in the provinces to take over the powers of government from elected mayore and governors. Manila's six English-language newspapers, as well as other, smaller publications, were closed down. Troopers entered the Philippines Herald building at around 2 a.m., quietly disarmed the night security personnel and told them the country was now under martial law.

Radio stations featuring news bulletins were shut down at the same time. Offices of wire services and other foreign news media were still open, however. The proclamation of martial law may be a temporary measure to cope with renewed Communist terrorist activity,

The shooting up of the defense secretary's car follows a fortnight of mysterious bombing incidents in the Greater Manila area. Damaged by the bombs were the city halls of Manlia proper and Quezon City, public utility installations, the Constitutional Convention Hall, department stores and three schools. "Generally speaking, we are not in a hurry," he said. "We have the utmost respect for the aspirations of our countrymen in the South. We will do nothing contrary to their aspirations. Reunification will be accomplished in a very democratic, peaceful and equal way."

He was asked whether reunification meant economic as well as political integration. When he replied that the form would depend on discussion by the two sides, he was asked directly, "Will South Vietnam be a Communist society after reunification?"

That is covered in the spirit of my first answer," he replied. We will discuss that among outselves. We will not do anything to impose our will. That is why, even if I have some ideas of my own, I cannot carry out those ideas by myself,"

He adoed that "the Vietnamese people in the North" would never forget the sacrifices of their countrymen in the South in 30 years of fighting. He said both groups would bear in mind those sacrifices.

The premier described the American air bases in Thailand as a "constant menace," He said those bases as well as other U.S. military bases in the Pacific and the ships and planes of the U.S. Seventh Fleet would require future vigilance.

He said that despite "a lot of propagands about the withdrawal of U.S. troops' from Vietnam the fact was that the United States for several months had been waging a very big war in Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia using some 200,000 men, including those at the bases and in the fleet

FBI Agent Allowed to Retire To Avoid Demotion, Transfer

Mr. Stalford

As a part of the agreement replied that unless the borrowers were officers or directors, they could not be identified, Mr. Mcthat brought the retirement at age 54 of Wesley G. Grapp, an order for his demotion, suspen-sion and transfer, an order issued last Friday, was rescinded by L. as a director, but Mr. Stalford held that he could not accept Patrick Gray 3d, acting director of the FRI.

The order was based on the discovery that Mr. Grapp had secretly used a tape machine to record telephone calls and cenversations in his office.

Thus Mr. Grapp will be permitted to retire at the federal pay grade GS-18 ($36,060 annual salary) instead of the grade GS-13 ($24,262 annual salary) to which he had been demoted by Mr. Gray. In either case, his pension, calculated from the highest three years of income, would have been about the same -$18,000 annually.

FBI Press Release The retirement was announced in a five-page press release dis-tributed by FBI agents.

The investigation centered on allegations last May growing out of reports that Mr. Grapp owed more than $750,000 to several Los Angeles banks and had no known sources of outside income,

It is unclear what specific allegations were originally made, but Mr. Gray sent an investiga-tion team to Los Angeles and subsequently ruled that Mr. Grapp had not violated any federal laws or any FBI regulations in his dealings with the banks. In late July, a second investigation was held, to examine Mr. Grapp's stewardship of the Los Angeles FBI office. The secret tape-recording charge surfaced in the second probe.

Institution's Standing Mr. Gray was quoted by the Los Angeles Times on Tuesday as having said in an interview: "We can't have beadlines going out about alleged corruption. We have to protect the institution. It would be the first case of corruption in the FBI and it isn't that at all."

Nowhere except in the personal files of Mr. Grapp and in the reports made to Mr. Gray by his inspectors is there a rundown of what the records show about Mr. Grapp's transactions with Los Angeles area banks.

However, fragments of information about the Grapp affair have become known. An unnamed informant told state officials in the spring that Mr. Grapp had heavy loans from the Fidelity Bank, a state bank in Beverly Hills. The bank's president was Stanley Stalford. The bank was in serious financial condition because of overextension of loans on real estate and because many loans were in delinquent status, banking sources have said.

Bank Absorbed In a two-step procedure con-cluded in July, Fidelity Bank was absorbed into the United States Bank of San Diego, which picked through the Fidelity portfolio of outstanding loans and declined to take about $6 million worth of them as assets. These were retained by First Fidelity Co., which owned Fidelity Bank, and became the basis of a tax write-off of about $4.7 million, according to information available yesterday at a stockholders meeting of First Fidelity in Los Angeles.

Mr. Stalford's slate of directors was elected at the meeting, despite challenges from stockholders, including Robert C. Mc-Millan, a lawyer whose familyowned mortgage company was Yesterday, Mr. Agnew issued this statement: "The New York Times story is inaccurate-wrong in its overall conclusion and wrong in its partimlerities.

"Some errors are apparent from examination of the vice-presidential press conference transcript. Some result from the notorious unreliability of 'Capitol Hill sources' regarding presidential

The statement said: "It has now been proved that Mr. Benedicto Kiwamuka was never arrested by any member of the security forces. If he was arrested, as was alleged by the foreign news media, he would definitely have been kept in one of the government custodies." The government was "very much concerned," the statement said, at the chief justice's disap-

The spokesman said that information had been received yesterday that "some guerrillas were around the Kampala area." "As such, the presence of these guerrilles might have some connection with the disappearance of the chief justice."

He said that "whatever difficulties Uganda is going through at this period, President Nyerere of Tenzania and ex-President Milton Obote of Uganda were to blame for it."

It also makes more sense, he insists, to talk about elections as if they were horse races, an activity he is more frequently in touch with, and forget about those percentage points the famous pollsters favor.

In fact, Jimmy the Greek, a Las Vegas bookmaker, seems a hit unhappy even with his own "official" methods. He has found that he can duplicate his own poll findings by casually talking to people in the street.

Mitsubishi Donates $1 Million To Harvard for a Law Chair

(NYT).—In what was said to he an unparalleled act of Japanese corporate generosity, the Mit-subishi group of industries donated $1 million yesterday to Harvard University to establish a chair in Japanese legal studies.

The gift to the law school appeared to reflect in part the mounting uneasiness among Japanese industrialists over recent strains in Japanese-U.S. relations. We cannot deny there are strains and conflicts of interest," said Chujiro Fujino, the head of the huge Mitsubishi conglomerate as he handed over the check. Ha added that the gift was meant to back up his feeling that "every effort must be made to preserva and foster our ties."

What made the grant particularly unusual was that the Japanese have no great tradition of private and corporate philanthropy. Mr. Fujino acknowledged that during Mitsubishi's vast postwar expansion, the company

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22 (WP). The Census Bureau said yesterday that by the time the 5.7 million U.S. women now in their early 30s reach 50 years of age, about a fourth are likely to have had their first marriages end in

A sixth of these women have had at least one divorce already, the bureau said, adding that most of the divorcees have remarried. The statistics are contained in a report on marriage, divorce and remarriage in the United States, in which the bureau said that the more money a family makes and the higher the educational attainments of the husband and wife, the more likely their marriage is to last.

The bureau said that, "since the mid-1950s, the proportion of first marriages that have ended in divorce has increased sharply" in the United States. Of women now about 50 years of ago-those born from 1920 to 1924-about a sixth have had first marriages end in divorce. In 1955, when those women were in their early 30s, only one in 10 had had a first marriage end that way.

50 Percent More Common What that means is that dirorce among women 35 and under is now about 50 percent more common than it was some as well as first. About half of all first marriages that end in divorce do so before the wife reaches age 30 and about 85 percent of such divorces occur before the wife reaches 45. In an interview, Mr. Glick said that the divorce rate in the United States stood at 26 per 1,000 married women in the years 1969 to 1971. By contrast, he said, it ranged between 10 and 13 per 1,000 married women throughout the 1920s and 1930s.

Breakdown by Income

In its breakdown of divorce by income level, the report said that in 72 percent of families with annual incomes under $5,000 both husband and wife had been married only once.

The figure was 77 percent for families with incomes between $5,000 and $10,000 and 81 percent for families in the $10,000 to $15,000 bracket. It was 83 per-cent for families with incomes of $15,000 and over.

The percentages were only for families in which the husband was 35 to 54 years old. A similar pattern held true for education: In 75 percent of families where neither husband nor wife had finished high school both spouses had been married only once. The figure was 90 percent where both husband and wifa were college graduates.

The Case of General Lavelle

war. He and his two-star deputy not only ignored the guidelines essentially, shoot when there was evidence of hostile enemy reaction for raids in North Vietnam; they told Seventh Air Force pilots on some 20 missions to bomb whether there was such evidence or not. He ran his command in a way that false reports prevented internal Air Force procedures from uncovering his misdeeds. It took a lone sergeant to blow the whistle in a letter to a senator. Gen Lavelle then claimed the raids lay within his interpretation of the bombing guidelines. although he had not previously disclosed his interpretation to his superiors. The Air Force relieved, retired and demoted him-so far, only him. But Gen. Ryan, Air Force chief of staff, aknowledges to the Senate Armed Services Committee that the same thing could happen again.

It should be noted that Gen. Lavelle conducted most of the raids in question, six to 10 months ago, without the knowledge or consent of either Adm. Moorer, then and now chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, or Gen. Abrams, then American commander in Vietnam. The committee transcript shows that Adm. Moorer approved an escort reconnaissance mission over Quang Lang airport last Nov. 8, but not the "bomb regardless" order which Gen. Lavelle issued to his pilots. Gen. Abrams authorized an attack last Jan. 5 on Moc Chau radar station, a grass-area target later found by the joint chiefs not to have been on the then-approved target list. But these two raids stand apart from the 20odd raids carried out surreptitiously by Gen. Lavelle in January-March, 1972. We see no grounds for challenging Gen. Abrams's nomination to be army chief of staff because of the Jan. 5 raid. The Lavelie case is the heart of the matter disclosed so far.

* * * What is at issue, in the first instance, is the vexing ambiguity of a limited war in the eyes of the men engaged in fighting it. The political reasons behind the bombing restriction simply were not as compelling to Gen. Lavelle as were the targets and the risks to

Gen. Lavelle was running his own private his men in the field. Yet in a limited war, the calibration of military pressure is a crucial political factor. Hanci was surely basing part of its judgment on Washington's worthiness as a partner in diplomacy, on how well or poorly Washington was observing the 1968 bombing-halt "understanding," then (a year ago) still in effect. Gen. Lavelle's raids took place in a period of intense American-North Vietnamese contacts. Whether his raids, militarily negligible as they may have been, undercut whatever Henry Klasinger then was telling North Vietnam's Le Duc Tho, may never be known. But the chances of diplomatic damage in such a situation

> In a daeper sense, the Lavelle case and so many others below the general, if not above him, seem to have been involved that it is something of a misnomer to pin it all on him-raises a fundamental issue of civilian control. The system devised in the Air Force to assure responsiveness to civilian and higher-military orders broke down for a number of months. In the nuclear age, with the weapons available to local commanders, this is a more than disorderly military conduct. It is a nightmare. And Gen. Ryan says it could happen again.

> "Something must be done," says Sen. Stennis. We look forward to hearing his specific proposals. Some think that new control mechanisms, involving civilians or doublechecking should be installed. Others note that the character of a four-star general ought to be the best guarantee of military integrity. There is also the possibility that an appropriate "message" will be sent by the manner in which the Air Force acts on the disclosures made in the current hearingsfor instance, Lavelle's deputy, Gen. Slay, contradicting his chief, eavs he was ordered to faisify reports. The first responsibility for assuring civilian control lies with the President, but Sen. Stennis because of his position and personal stature can surely make a weighty contribution of his own.

Brussels last January, the world has taken it for granted that the European Economic Norway, despite the much more favorable Community would expand from six to 10 member states on next New Year's Day. Even when the legislation necessary for British membership of the Common Market Danish farmers and relief from a long-standwas barely surviving critical tests in the ing balance of payments problem. Yet polis House of Commons, it was habitual to refer show erosion of support for entry and the to the Community of Ten, as though it were referendum result is in doubt almost an accomplished fact.

It has now been driven home rather abruptly to REC members and other interested governments that it may not happen after all. Britain and Ireland will certainly join the Common Market this coming Jan. 1; but Norway and Denmark may remain outside. If they do spurn membership after having gone eo far as to sign the Brussels Treaty, their action will be a eevere blow not only to hopes for Western European unity but to the NATO alliance.

About 2.5 million Norwegians are expected to vote on Monday in a straight "yes" or "no" referendum on joining the Community. Legally, the vote will not be binding on the Storting but in practice the referendum will decide the issue. Many of the 150 Storting members say they will follow the popular verdict when they vote on ratification. Recent opinion polls show gains for proponents of entry-but a majority still resolutely

Denmark's referendum a week later will be

Ever since the signing of the treaty in binding on the government and probably will be heavily influenced by the outcome in immediate prospects the Danes could expect inside the community. Membership would inevitably mean greater prosperity for

Not all opponents of the Common Market in Norway and Denmark also oppose NATO membership. But some of the most active elements in the effort to keep the two countries out of the community are also ardent neutralists who seek to detach Norway and Denmark from any ties whatever to the West. If they succeed in dealing this blow to hopes for Western European unity their next target will inevitably be the link with the United States in NATO.

Much of the responsibility for disenchantment of Danes and Norwegians must rest, however, with the Community itself, and particularly with France, which has done so much to diminish the idea and the ideal of Western European unity buttressed by vibrant supranational institutions. If it were a democratic United States of Europe (for which Jean Monnet called eloquently again this week) that the two Scandinavian countries were being asked to join, the outcome might be very different.

Back at the UN

The atmosphere in which the United Nations opened seems very much like that in which the 20th Olympics ended. It is already obvious that the debate on terrorism will necessarily include two points, one of which has never left the agenda the other which has never been on it: the Palestine conflict and the Vietnam conflict.

-From Le Figuro (Paris). * * *

While everyone is speculating on the content of the Le Duc Tho-Klasinger conversations on Vietnam, it is certain that the Indochinese question, particularly the Cambodian situation, will soon be the object of a debate in the UN General Assembly. As 2 matter of fact, several countries are going to ask the Assembly to replace the delegation of the Phnom Penh regime by the delegation of the united royal government of Prince Sihanouk .-- From Le Monde (Paris).

Decline of the Khmer Republic

"The situation is deteriorating from day to day in favor of the enemy and the Sihanouk clique. In a word, this is the result of the incapacity of our government." This recent quote from a Phnom Penh newspaper expresses the present mood in the Cambodian capital. The enthusiasm of the summer of 1970 has given way to a general weariness and hopelessness over the war, which manifests itself in the increasing moral collapse of the upper class and desperate anathy among the masses. Lon Not has failed to mobilize the people for a common effort. Even more biatantly than was to be expected, Cambodia's fate will now depend on foreign intervention and the outcome of the struggle for South Vietnam.

All international meetings, whether of athletes, diplomats or businessmen, are subject to this terror, and now the postal services of the world are being used to send explosive devices to Israell embassies, where the mail has to be sifted by experts in bullet-

The News Business

The Vatican Newspape Reappraises Its Role

By William Tuohy

edition of the afternoon daily L'Osservatore Romano carried front-page stories about President Nixon, Northern Ireland, and the Paris peace talks.

For most publications, such news selection would be routine, but for the influential, closely read, unefficial Vatican newspaper, it reflects new editorial departures.

L'Osservatore Romano is siming to increase and broaden its coverage of world events, and in the process may well become less a document whose nuances understood only by Vaticanologists in world capitals.

"We are trying to modernize the paper and make it more journalistic," says editor Raimon-do Manzini, "We will still carry official religious news, of course, but the rest of the paper really wants to become a paper."

Political Coverage

Thus political news which used to be pretty much restricted to Italian affairs is being widened. And nonreligious subjects like the Angela Davis trial are being reported neutrally.

And at the same time. L'Osservatore Romano and its sister Sunday supplement, L'Osservatore Della Domenica, are also broadening the area—both religious and nonreligious—for pointed editorial comment.

L'Osservatore Della Domenica for instance, recently carried an editorial declaring that Sen. George S. McGovern's presidential campaign was helping North Vietnam and the Viet Cong, and therefore hindering President Nixon's efforts to disengage in Southeast Asia. Since the editorial was signed by Federico Alessandrini, the Vatican press spokesman, it was taken to represent a certain cool-ness toward McGovern on the part of the highest levels of the L'Osservatore Romano also raised backles, in West Germany recently when it strongly criticized a new abortion bill that was being considered by the legislature in Bonn.

The paper has also commented on abortion bills in other countries, on Victnam, the SALT accords, environment matters, racial equality, women's liberation (which it supports with reservations), and Mr. Nixon's visit to China and Russia (it approves). In both news coverage of Catholic religious matters and editorials, the paper does not attempt to give a balanced presen-

the India-Pakistan fighting and there is no indication yet whether plan, now under preparation. Western observers here view this move as a significant step aid will be resumed.

Meanwhile, serious shortages in production and scarcity of essential materials such as steel, fortilizers and chemicals have begun to hurt the Indian economy, Prices are rising and unemployment is growing. There has been hardly any private investment for industrial ventures partly because of the government's policy of reserving profitshle key industries for the state sector and partly because of lack of foreign financial and technical cooperation,

The Soviet agreement will help expand production in existing state projects as well as help build plants for fertilizers, chemicals, oil exploration and several other lesser industries. There is even a proposal for Soviet collaboration in building computers, although the Russians themselves are looking to the United States for newgeneration computers.

So far, the Soviet Union has helped India to a limited extent in setting up a steel plant at Bhilai in Madhya Pradesh, a bigger one at Bokaro in Bihar State, a heavy machinery project and a drug industry,

The Soviet Union, taking advantage of the low labor costs in this country, is supplying steel for conversion into screws and cutlery and cotton for conversion into thread, for re-export. Indian industries are increasingly re-scheduling their projects according to the needs of the Soviet Union and other Communist countries where they have a Commits Suicide killed himself yesterday.

The writer's secretary found Mr. Montherlant's body sprawled on his desk; he had shot himself in the mouth. Mr. Montherlant had been in failing health. He recently became himd in one eye and was losing sight in the other. Three letters decisring his in-tention to commit suicide were found at his side. One was to the secretary, another to a close friend and a third to a court official. Suicide," he wrote in "La Mort de Caton" in 1965, "has the honor of being presented as a sin with-out being one . . . One commits suicide out of respect for life, when your life has stopped being worthy of you." He chose suicide as a solution for man; of the heros of his works.

Mr. Montherlant considered taking one's life a normal solution under certain circumstances. among which he listed physical debilitation.

It was apparently the author's fear of hecoming totally hlind that led him to take his life. The painter Edouard MacAvoy, who visited him yesterday hours before Mr. Montherlant's death, quoted him as saying:

"I live in anguish of suddenly becoming hlind. I cannot hear the thought of becoming hlind.

Gen. Chaisson, Ex-Marine, Dead Of Heart Attack

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22 (NYT).-Lt. Gen. John R. Chaisson, 53, former chief of staff of the Marine Corps, died of a heart attack Wednesday while playing badminton at the officers club at the Pentagon. Gen. Chaisson had been deputy director of regulations for the Atomic Energy Commission since his retirement last July. Gen. Chaisson held the second-ranking post in the Marine Corps when Gen. Leonard F. Chapman was preparing to retire last year, and many expected that he would be named commandant. The appointment went, however, to Gen. Robert E. Cushman jr. whom President Nixon has made deputy director of the Central Intelligence Agency in 1969.

Mr. Montherlant was the second member of the Académie Française to die within 48 hours. Pierre-Henri Simon, 69. 2 writer and critic, died Wednesday.

Mr. Montherlant began writing essays, poems and short novels as a student. Re came into the inerary limelight, however, at the age of 30 when he published "Les Bestinizes." a 1926 novel about hullfighting based on his frequent stays in Spain. He had a lifelong passion for hullfighting.
A sturdy athlete and sportsman, Mr. Montherlant served on the front in World War I and chronicled his reminiscences in a novel, "La Relère du Matin." and later in "Chant Funcore pour les Morts de Verdun."

Mr. Montherlant had been an amateur torero but had to stop all violent physical exercise in his mid-30s after being trampled by a young hull at Albacete. He then traveled widel; throughout the Mediterranean area, publishing novels-many of which were cast in Spain.

Mr. Montherlant, who was wounded in World War I, received a slight wound again when he followed a battle in 1940 as a war correspondent. He was suspended from the writers association for one year in 1947 on charges of publishing articles in various magazines published during the Nazi occupation.

The newspaper Le Monde wrote that his book, "Le Solstice de Juin" published at that time, contained "some insufferable pages which hailed the victory of the swartita as the opening of an era of grandeur."

Mr. Montherlant's career as dramatist began shortly afterward, and it overshadowed his work as novelist. He wrote a EEC officials said this reflected the views made clear by several members, particularly the Netherlands.

BONN: Chancelior Willy Brandt, in a magazine interview last February, welcomed Spain's increasing interest in forging a strong link with the market. But he added, "there are difficulties; participation . . . requires a measure of democracy greater than that which exists at the moment in Spain—the existence, that is, of elected deputies and free unions."

ROME: Political observers said the Italian government probably did not oppose Spanish entry hut could not say so unequivocally hecause of Italy's strong left wing. The observer doubted whether internal political pressure would permit Italian support for full Spanish memberslup as long as Gen. Francisco Franco remained head of state.

LONDON: Informed sources sald that Britain, which joins the market next Jan. 1, would like to see closer relations between Spain and the EEC and, in principle, would be sympathetic to eventual Spanish membership.

The jokes are on those two most serious matters, sex and death. The play, which has nothing to do with the title-that refers to a passing joke—is mostly set in a cemetery, "one of the healthiest cemeteries in Dublin," where two whores, mourning the death of a colleague, bring along a mattress in case of passing trade. THE MARKET

Accounting for Price Disparities of Japanese Art

By Souren Melikian

ONDON (IHT) .- Among the most obvious characteristics that differentiate the art market from other markets is the exis-tence of disparitles in prices between categories that are seem-

For example, one would reasonsbly assume that paintings belonging to a country and period whose woodblocks and objets d'art are highly favored would be popular too and therefore accordingly priced. Indeed, the paintings should be far more expensive in absolute figures, for painting traditionally rates higher than the so-called decorative arts -pottery, lacouer work, etc.--and prints of which several are made from a given block. In the case of one country at least—Japan this is not so.

Few Japanese paintings appear at auction. This is particularly true of paintings done in the 18th and 19th century. The exhibition (through the end of September: of 84 paintings mostly of that period, at the Kegan Paul Gallery, 43 Great Russell Street, London, therefore offers an opportunity to form an idea of current prices.

The exhibition offers a reasonable cross-section of the paintings of average quality, from the most traditional type of landscape derived from the earlier Chinese academic schools to the wildest Zen productions. All the works are illustrated in the catalogue with brief descriptions—and prices. A glance is enough to convince one that they are considerably lower than those of lacquer work of comparable quality, i.e. reasonably good, of decorative rather than bighly aesthetic value.

Zen Paintings A few random prices at recent London and Paris anctions show that Japanese lacouer work does not have to be signed or highly original to fetch the maximum, At Christie's on June 5. a lacquer box (9 1/4 by 7 1/4 inches) "unsigned, 19th century" was sold for £1,050 to the London Gallery. was decorated with autumn flowers, herbs and butterflies. At the Paris sale of Mr. Lionel de Pongibault's collection of lacquer boxes and inros on June 13 (IHT, June 17-18), a commonplace inro with the seal of Inagawa, a 19th-century artist, made 4,640 francs, a whacking price for a medicine box about 5 inches long. On the average. 1,000 to 4.000 frames is the price bracket for the run-of-the-mill inro these days in London and

But from a contrary, rather banal by West- and some familiarity with Japa-was done by 19th-century Zen strictly aesthetic viewpoint, the ern standards: £250 seems ex- ness culture—Japanese literature, was done by 19th-century Zen artists in black ink on piper or silk. The paintings are cheracter-ized by a high degree of a bstrac-tion; the human figure is dashed off with a few strokes. A strong satirical strain holds an immediate appeal to the Western eye. Such is, for example, a portrait (16 by 19 inches) of a monk with a figure strangely suggestive of a pear. Painted on silks it is signed by Tairu, a 13th-century Zen monk from the Obaku temple, near Tokyo. The price: £75. Another drawing (13 by 50 in) hes) on paper represents. The Deity Monju on a Lion. The squat body of the deity with ton sure is a powerful caricature. So is "lion" which looks more like a buildog. Sixty-fire pounds is not much to pay for it if you consider the prices of an Intro with a good signature from that Paintings reflecting the easter Chinese styles are in the same approximate price range. An early 19th-century picture (15, by 48 inches) of two bamboo trees by Shiro, is marked £75. With two creases and some fading. it is comparatively speaking, more expensive than the Zen publitings which are in better condition. This difference in pricates is essentially due to the greater decorative merits of Shiro's works: Bamboo has always been nopp.

Italian Vintage Threatened by 'Unending' Rain

ROME, Sept. 22 (UPI)_Un= ending rain is threatening to make this year's vintage one of Italy's worst in a long time, farming experts said this week.

The Institute for Agricultural Market Research said weeks of frequent rain, low temperatures and morning fog have badly affected the quality of grapes now being harvested in much of Italy.

It said rotting causes growers to discard as much as 40 percent of the crop, and wholesalers bave complained some bad grapes still are left in consignments reaching big cities.

What saleable product is left is fetching low prices because of low sugar content, the institute said. It gave no estimate of the size of this year's vintage, but said that exports as of Sept. 15 were 15.8 percent below last

Grape production in 1971 was nine million tons, down half e million from the previous year Paris. Going by the Kegan Paul because of a severe drought which was partly offset by last-minute two Zen works, which have greater originality, should be more

Quite clearly Japanese painting of the 19th century is not yet priced according to criteria related to the art trends of 19thcentury Japan.

Surprisingly, some earlier Zen works are not necessarily more expensive. A portrait (23 by 53 inches) of the Buddhist patriarch Daruma, by Shunjo, a pupil of a famous 18th-century master, Hakuin, is offered at £400 but another Daruma by the 17thcentury master Tanyu signed and sealed "at the age of 64." is only £200. In this case, as in a few others, I suspect that prices were determined more by the price which the dealer had to pay get the paintings than by their

In short, the price scale does not seem to follow the highly rationalized pattern of Western

Two Works

Among the more unusual works in the exhibition, two deserve attention from an historical point

One carries Shunjo's signature and is called in the catalogue The Subjugation of the English-Three Europeans are seen having the top of their heads shared in Japanese style, Judg-ing from their exaggerated mimicry, they are not enjoying it. The barber bends over them with a Mephistophelian smile. Compared with the vivid humor of the better Zen-works, which has a permanent strain of surrealism in it, the work is heavy-handed. The catalogue stresses the rarity of the work-we are told the artist died "rather young"-and points out the relationship to the early works of Hokusai, partly, one may assume, to prepare the potential buyer for the comparatively high price of £800.

The other rare piece is by the 19th-century artist Shiba Kokan. It is, according to the catalogue, an unusual landscape in color on silk, combining European perspective with a Japanese subject matter—the snowy mountain in the distance towering above a lake. But unusual as it may seem to a specialist, it is, on the pensive compared with some other prices.

These two works by Shunjo and Shiba Kokan appear to have been in the gallery's possession for some time. I remember seeing them in an earlier exhibition. The average Western buyer is probably not sufficiently interested in Japanese art history to pay such prices, which can be justified primarily by historical arguments. And Western museums of Eastern art do not generally concern themselves with the paintings of this late period.

Rarity

Will the difference in price be tween Japanese paintings and objets d'art of the 18th and 19th century last much longer? One reason for the disparity lies, paradoxically, in the comparative rarity of the paintings. Art lovers can easily become acquainted in inros because there are thousands of them. They have a miniaturelike quality and their bright colors make them instantly accessible. Japanese painting is different. To understand it—and therefore to appreciate it-requires a much higher degree of connoisseurship

nese culture-Japanese literature, the Japanese brand of Buddhism -without which Zen painting, for example, is in danger of being mistaken for an exotic oddity. It is so closely linked with calligraphy as to almost require first hand linguistic knowledge. The likelihood of Western art lovers suddenly boning up on classical Japanese is remote. Altogether, it seems reasonable to assume that the disparity in prices between inros and paintings will remain for many more months. The 6th International Blennial of Antique Dealers opened Priday at the Grand Palais, Paris, where it will remain until Oct. 15. This year's show includes more than 5,000 paintings, objets d'art, and furnishings from virtually all art periods. Each is supposed to be in perfect condition. All of the 23-niece collection of Persian jewels lent by Empress Farah of Iran, and a few historical pieces, including Oscar Wilde's desk and the cradle given by the City of

At IMF Parley: Talk, Little Else

By Hobart Rowen

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22 (WF).-It has become fashionable in the past few years to suggest that nothing much will happen at the annual meet-ings of the World Bank and International Monetary Fund. There is no reason to have a different view of the 28th such conference which begins here Monday.

This is recognition, first of all, that these affairs are largely ceremonial, much like the annual meetings of a corporation, where the board of directors reports to the stockholders (in this case, the member countries) on the previous year's activities.

On the IMF side, the world only last year witnessed a complete breakdown of the monetary system that had been in effect since 1944. The state of shock still exists, and no one is ready yet to pick up the pieces and build a new massic It will take time

On the World Bank side, the problem of transferring more resources from the rich nations to the poor is still there—and gets no better. In between president Robert McNamara's annual poignant speeches on the subject nothing much gets done.

Talk Will Be Plentiful

There will be talk about these issues, plenty of that. And, to the extent that ventilation of problems educates the public and crystallises opinion among the movers and shakers of the financial world, these annual meetings are no doubt highly essential.

This year the most to be expected from these sessions is that they will officially launch the new Committee of 20 on its way to discussions of basic changes that will modernize the whole com-plicated system. A working group of deputies may also find a chairman—a position of great importance over the next few years.

Far Apart on Objectives The European nations on the one hand, and this country on the other, appear to be so far apart in major objectives that one can envision a long struggle ahead. If Peter Jay of the Lon-don Times is correct, and I think he is, the Europeans dominated by "economic autorkists," are interested mainly in their own problems. My reading of the official American mood is that it has not shifted much from John Cor-nally's emphasis, which was to force a better deal for U.S. exporters, agricultural as well as manufacturing. The mercantile approach, in other words, is besic on both sides of the At-

Treasury Under Secretary Paul Voicker has made it clear that the United States will turn a deaf ear to monetary "reform" proposals uniil the whopping U.S. balance of payments deficit is wiped out. That cannot be done, of course, until the present U.S. trade deficit is transformed once again into a substantial surplus.

So the big question relates not so much to the many technicalities of SDRs. convertibility. Scating rates, and so on—but to the brend-and-butter issue: How willing is the rest of the world to permit the U.S. to earn a trade surplus? Danger of Protectionism

A shift in the trade balances among the United States, Europe and Japan can no doubt be achieved—but probably at the cost of jobs in those countries that enjoy large surpluses. The clear danger, of course, is a worldwide drift into

On monetary reform itself, there is no dearth of plans and schemes. There is something of a consensus that there should be a phasing out of gold and dollars in favor of SDRs. Various experts have long since supplied all of the tech-nical details that anybody could want. And this past spring, Federal Reserve Board chairman Arthur F. ## Japan Eyes Gold Prices Drop Sharply, 'Drastic' Curb Sterling Weakens in Europe

LONDON, Sept. 22 (AP-DJ).- made yesterday by President Gold prices declined rather sharply at London and other European bullion markets today as buying interest evaporated prior to Monday's annual meeting of the International Monetary Fund in Washington,

In another development the British pound was under fairly heavy pressure in London and other European money markets amid rumors of possible actions at next week's IMF meeting.

There hasn't unnaturally been a certain amount of nervousness in front of the TMF meeting but selling was relatively negligible," said an official of N. M. Rothschild & Sons, London bullion

"Business was slow through the day-in fact I have never seen such a big drop in the price on such small volume as we have seen today," he added.

Dealers set the morning gold qunte in London at $64.65 an ounce, down 60 cents from yester-day's official close. The price dropped another 75 cents at the afternoon fixing close at $63.90 an ounce, a net loss on the day of $1.35. In late unofficial trade, dealers were qunting a price range of $54 to $64.50.

In currency dealing in London the spot, or two-day, price for the pound in relation to the U.S. dollar dropped to $2,4340 shortly before midday, the first time the price had been below $2.44 since July 7. ## New System Set For EEC Tax on Fund Formation

BRUSSELS, Sept. 22 (AP-DJ).

The Common Market commission today moved to meet British objections by proposing a new directive for unifying taxes on corporate capital formation, an EEC spokeaman said.

The tax in EEC countries applies to capital formed when new companies are established or when new shares are issued. An existing directive requires the rates to be between 1 and 2 percent of capital formed, but provides a rate of half the normal level for mergers.

Britain doesn't have any such tax. It projested that the KEC system would not apply to acquisitions made through the stock market, which is more favored in Britain than the continental method of two companies simply agreeing to merge. The spokesman said the new directive would also tax acquisitions made through the stock market at the half-rate, thus removing any tax advantage from choosing this acquisition route rather than a negotiated merger: Under another directive, EEC countries are to unify their capital formation taxes to a single

1 percent rate by the beginning of 1975. Britain has not rejected this proposal, which would result in the first completely unified tax in the EEC.

NECESSARY OBJECTS

By Lois Gould. 271 pp. Random House. $6.95

Reviewed by Anatole Broyard

"Such Good Friends," Was almost as much underestimated as Joan Didion's "Play It as It Lays" was overestimated. Though Miss Didion's book has always been considered some sort of "first" or turning point in recent women's novels, her "heroine" was almost catatonically dispirited, and we were forced, for lack of evidence, to take her condition for granted. She went through all the current cliches— dropping out, a sleazy abortion, utter unwillin ress to communicate, attempted suicide and there was even a retarded child the symbolic reward of marriage, just as the sleazy abortion was the symbolic reward for a love affair over which she maundered just like any Jane Doe. Miss Didion's two-pace and three-pace chapters successfully avoided any meaningful contact, confrontation or exchanges, and the book ended on the requisite negative enigms.

Also, since "Such Good Friends" was about a woman whose husband died as a result of a hospital's mistake—and since many people read in the newspapers about Mrs. Gould's winning such a suit in real life-her book was said to have been written in anger," and this was gibly supposed to have given it whatever "authenticity" it had.

Well, after reading "Necessary Objects," I'm ready to announce that Mrs. Gould has plenty of anger left over, enough for at least a dozen more novels. The book is convincing evidence, too, that the good things in "Such Good Friends" were neither accidental nor merely circumstantial. Mrs. Gould is a writer who knows exactly what she is doing. She is being brilliantly bitchy, among other things. Bitchiness is in danger of going out of style. One wishes more women's libera-tion writers, for example, had more of it to enliven their pages.

At considerable personal risk, I would define bitchiness as certain women's or certain homosexuals' sort of irony. It is sharper edged and narrower in scope than, say, the irony of Thomas Mann or Ford Maddox Ford, but it is often good anthropology—extremely accurate and witty personal observations. Since so few people qualify for genuine irony, bitchiness is a necessary scaling down of this sublimely tonic quality, a recognition that the tragic dimension is absent. Its tone seems to have evolved naturally out of the people and the texture of life in New York. And there are few writers more skilled in using it than Mrs. Gould.

What matters most is that the author makes it work: We believe in her people; we are persuaded of their various forms of failure or distress; and we know that they speak for their peculiar cultural strata. "Necessary Objects" is about four sisters, rich, spoiled, attractive Jewish girls in their middle or late thirties. When I encountered these four sisters, I thought: now why the hell does she want to do that? Four women? Why dilute her etcher's acid, spread herself out

But Mrs. Gould has not stretched her talent thin over her four characters: she has simply given herself more opportunities,

She even seems imply that they get the men t deserve, the only men who co tolerate—or be tolerated t

The four sisters in "Necess Objects" are heiresses of a Fi Avenue department store chi and Mrs. Gould has drawn mercifully on her background newspaper and magazine work make these particular mannequ breathe fire. There are shrivel insights into love, sex. pare hood, commerce and quite a other subjects, and the aut is a master of the throwav summing up; one man "boyish charm with charc pinstriped temples" and when says to his fiancée's adolesc daughter, "So you'd be Jill?" answers "Not if I had a cho

NEW YORK, Sept. 22 (IHT).— This is how critics rated new stage productions in New York "Jacques Brel Is Alive and Well and Living in Paris" arrived or Broadway at the Royale Theater and "I can only wonder why it took so long," comments The Times reviewer. "It was Pari cabaret seen through Broadwa; spectacles slick, relentless and with its poetry neatly encapsulated in gloss," Clive Barnes write: "This show now comes to Broad way with all its definess intac and its vigor undiminished. I remains a most superior and powerful musical." AP's Gloves ealls it "one grand show" that has "triumphantly completed the longest trek on record from Off-Broadway to mainstream." "Crazy Now," a musical revue at the Eden Theater, with music by Norman Sachs, directed and choreographed by Voight Kempson, got a negative review in The Times, "The sketches are witless, tasteless and lacking in imagination," Clive Barnes complains. "One or two of the numbers had their moment, among them one called Hard Times' and a Kurt Wellish-sort of number about a lady who took her tears to a party but nobody asked her to cry.' ## The Anti-Noise Bill

NEW YORK -- The City Coun- FOR NIXON AND AGNEW." cil of New York has just passed New York's first comprehensive law to control noise. The antinoise program is expected to go into effect in the next two years.

How do New Yorkers feel about it? I went out into the streets to find out.

The first man I spoke to was walking down the Avenue of the Americas. "Sir, how do you feel about the new anti-noise law that was just passed?" "WHAT DID YOU SAY?"

"I said how do you feel about Mayor Lindsay's plan to out-law the din in New York City?" "Is he going to outlaw gin? I'm vodka man myself, so it won't affect me."

"Not gin—din. He wants to lower the decibel count in New York City." "I don't know anything about decimals, but if I know Lindsay, he'll lower the decimalr and up the taxes." "Thank you very much, str."

"MY WIFE DRINKS GIN, I'M NOT SURE SHE'S GOING TO LIKE IT," he said, walking off, I went over to Fifth Avenue and spoke to B lady with a shopping bag. The Environmental Protection Administration of New York has declared war on

Silver Dollars Of 1800s for Sale

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22 (AP). -The General Services Administration is planning to sell 2,800,000 silver dollars from the 19th century, worth about $130 million on the collectors' market.

No dates have been set for the planned series of bid sales of the dollars minted at the Carson City (Nev.) mint, which closed before the turn of the century. The stockpile was discovered in 1964.

"No, I'm not polling you on the presidential campaign. I'm trying to find out what you think about

"What's he running for?" "He's not running for anything, noise is an issue-not a person,"

I yelled.
"I wouldn't know anything about that. I live in Brooklyn." Just then B policeman came up to me and asked, "Why are you shouting et this lady?" "I WASN'T SHOUTING AT HER. I WAS ASKING HER A SIMPLE QUESTION." "Why are you shouting at me?" the policemen demanded angrily.

"I WASN'T SHOUTING. Pm sorry, I was shouting, but that was because she couldn't hear me with all that construction going on over there."

"Suppose everyone in New York shooted. What kind of city do you think we'd have?" "That's just the point," I said.
"I'm asking people what they think about the new anti-noise

What new anti-noise law?" "The City Council passed B new law, and as soon as the mayor signs it, you can give out summonses to people who make too much noise." "You mean with everything else we have to do, the police are going to have to give out summonses for poise?" "Either that or take B bribe."

"Get off Fifth Avenue before noise pollution," I said. "How does I take you in," he screamed. "You don't have to shout." I said as I headed for Eighth Avenue. On Eighth Avenue I walked up ting poise in New York." He threw his hands high in the sir. "Take my wallet. It's in my left breast pocket." "This is not a stickup. I'm doing a poll." "Here's my watch. Just don't shoot me."

"Mister, put your hands down, I want to talk to you about "I got two boys." he cried. "Take the money and run."
A crowd started to gather, and decided to get out of there. As I walked away, one of the young men in the crowd shouted after me. "WHAT'S THE MAT-TER-NO GUTS?"

When Trognon Is A Four-Letter Word

By James Goldsborough

PARIS, Sept. 22 (IHT).—The trials and tribulations of Philippe Trognon, 3, came to an end today when a Paris court ruled that despite his ridiculous name he did not have to be separated from his adoptive parents.

The Paris Court of Appeals overruled a provincial court in Melun which last June ruled that Philippe could not stay with the parents who had adopted him a few months earlier because their name was "ridiculous." This prompted Gérard Trognon, 34, a perfectly respectable civil servant of Melun, to cry, "Our name ridiculous? The judgment is shocking!" The court had told him to change his family name if he wanted to keep Philippe.

The court of appeals verdict today was very circumspect. While admitting that young Philippe might indeed be subject later on to certain "stupid pleasantries" over his name, it said the advantages that obviously would accrue to him through being adopted by "an honorable household" should outweigh

But the appeals court added that if things got too bad for Philippe, "A name that lends itself to jeux de mots can always be modified under the law of 11 Germinal, An XI."

The Trognon business has been drawing considerable attention in France over the past few months. Not only was a large part of the public moved by the possibility that the Trognons might lose Philippe and be precluded from adopting the little girl they had their eye on, but other Frenchmen bearing questionable names wondered if they too might be held up one day to judicial ridicule.

Literally

A trognon is, in its literal translation, a cabbage stump, or an apple core. But, since few French words are limited to E single meaning it can mean more. One Frenchman said that it could be a term of endearment, as in mon petit Another said it could be used pejoratively, as in espèce de trognon. A third said that since it meant cabbage anyway, it could be used like chou, another term of endearment, or mignon, which brings to mind someone called Francois Mignon.

Mr. and Mrs. Gérard Trognon at court Friday.

In any case, all Frenchmen interviewed agreed that though it would be s hit silly to go through life being called Mr. Apple Core, there certainly were more awkward names. Some

A certain M. Bidet was mentioned, a M. Piederrière and B M. Cocu, all names which explain themselves reasonably well in English. There is the French name Com, which is not so had in the spelling as the pronunciation. And B Frenchman reminded that these sorts of difficulties were not unique to the French language. He said that the first time he visited San Francisco he could not believe that the tall, thin tower on Telegraph Hill actually was named Coit Tower after a Mr.

Jacques, the garçon de cafe next door, felt personally in-"My name is Poirier (pear tree)," he said. "If it can happen to Mr. Apple Core, it might even happen to me.

logic, France has officially buried the call me Miss-Ms.-or Mrs. issus: Any Frenchwoman over 21 may now choose whether she is a madame or a mademoiselle, marriage license or no. Justice Minister René Pleven, at 71 the oldest French cabinet minister, issued the ruling in the Journal Officiel It reads:

"No judicial obstacle standing in the way of the term 'madame' being used in preference to 'mademoiselle', there is no reason that this not extend to persons expressing the desire, even if it comes from unmarried women without children."

The ministry's decision follows problems encountered by some unmarried mothers in using the term madame on legal documents. The ruling reminded notaries and lawyere that unwed mothers have an absolute right to call themselves madame, and then added the line that the term could be used by any woman over 21 who wanted it.

In a pleasant twist, the poor in this story get richer, and gambling pays off. John and Anna Misarak of Little Falls. Social Security retirees, became instant millionaires in the New York State lottery. Their in-come becomes $50,000 a year for the rest of their lives; if the ticketholder dies before receiving $1 million, the balance will be paid to his estate. Mizarak, 76, a blind retiree from a knitting mill who immigrated to the United States from Czechoslovakia "more years ago than I remember," could only say "miracle, miracle, miracle" when his son, John jr., 40, told him of his good fortune. Mrs. Mizarak, who bought eight $3 tickets, reacted much as did her husband: "It's fust a miracle, now we can remodel the house." . . . .

Some twists and turns in this tale, too.
